

Truman Pledges New Deal Fight; Dedicates FDR Home As Shrine

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Hyde Park, N. Y., April 12 (AP)—President Truman vowed today to carry on Franklin D. Roosevelt's fight against "tyranny" abroad and for the "progressive and humane principles of the New Deal."

Standing "in reverence" at ceremonies dedicating "this hallowed spot"—the Roosevelt estate—as a national shrine on the first anniversary of Mr. Roosevelt's death, President Truman said: "May Almighty God, who has watched over this republic as it grew from weakness to strength, give us the wisdom to carry on in the way of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

It was Mr. Truman's first trip to Hyde Park since he journeyed here a year ago for the burial of his predecessor.

"The loss which America suffered through the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt cannot be softened by the spoken word," the President said. "Tributes can only emphasize our loss. But those of us who have survived in the seat of government can pay homage to his memory by our deeds."

Aid Weak Nations

Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy, he said, "recognized the solemn duty of this country toward nations which have been weakened in the death struggle against tyranny."

For these principles of international cooperation, Mr. Truman declared, "we are determined to fight with all our strength."

Mr. Roosevelt's domestic policy, he continued, was "a recognition of the basic truth that this government exists not for the benefit of a privileged few but for the welfare of all the people."

Mr. Truman linked up his own domestic program with the New Deal legislation for which he said Mr. Roosevelt fought, asserting: "Those same principles apply to legislation assuring full production and full employment, legislation for a health program, a Social Security program, an educational program, a program to provide emergency housing for veterans and to solve the long-range problem of decent homes for all Americans. These and other progressive measures stem from the principles for which President Roosevelt fought, for which we, who are carrying on after him, now fight, and for which we shall continue to fight."

Same Objectives

Simply stated, Mr. Truman said, the nation's task "is to carry forward the underlying principles and policies, foreign and domestic" of his predecessor.

"Changes may be required here and there to meet changing conditions," he added. "Fundamentally the objectives are the same."

Mr. Truman declared that plain people all over the world join with

Gets Plan On Atomic Policy From Children On Park Bench

New York, April 12 (AP)—The American representative to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, lolling in the sun in his "air-conditioned office," surrounded by pigeons and playing children, and pondered upon a possible world atomic policy.

The statesman was tall, white-haired Bernard Baruch who has established the "office" of the U. S. delegation to the commission in Central Park near the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

For some time the 75-year-old financier has been receiving callers and tackling his new job on the park bench, a counterpart to his wartime "office" in Washington's Lafayette Park from which he handled the problems of manpower, the rubber shortage and lagging airplane production.

He said yesterday he had a plan—as yet still vague—to avert a possible atomic calamity and that he would report upon it to President Truman and perhaps some day to the United Nations.

As he spoke, he pointed to the children playing near his "office."

"These are my clients," he said. "These are the ones who will be affected by what we do."

HEAVY DAMAGE REPORTED HERE TO FRUIT CROP

Severe damage to the county's fruit crop was reported today by a number of growers although complete reports on the possible damage from the frosts of the past several days could not be made so soon after the cold weather cut into the area.

Thursday night the cloudy conditions kept frost away from the fruit to a great extent and the Harrisburg weather bureau today forecast windy weather tonight followed by warmer Saturday.

Much of the sweet cherry crop has been wiped out, according to several growers, by the killing frost on Wednesday and previous cold weather. The situation is made more serious, they add, by the leaf spot condition which left many trees weakened during the past winter.

Peaches Damaged

One grower in the Fairfield-Ortanna region reported that his peaches had been more severely hit than the apples, with damage up to 30 per cent to the peaches and the apples suffering about a 20 per cent loss. All of the damage centered in the trees in the lower parts of the orchard, with those on the hillsides unharmed.

Another grower in the same general area also reported his trees badly hit by the frost while another near Fairfield, whose orchard lies on fairly low ground reported that on many trees only a few buds near the tops of the trees appeared to be alive after a frost last weekend was followed by Wednesday's attack of cold weather.

ADD—HEAVY DAMAGE

Frederic Grist, Flora Dale, president of the State Horticultural society, said that as far as he could learn every orchard throughout the region has been hit hard by the latest dip of the mercury.

Broad Damage Reported

The fact that in some instances buds on trees which are usually the hardest have been hit harder than those on trees that usually have less fortitude adds an additional complication to the over-all picture, he said. While it is too early to make a general estimate of damage, he added, reports from various fruit growers indicate their losses would cut sharply into the eventual return of fruit this year.

In addition to the sweet cherry loss, which is the most serious, Grist reported that peaches were spotted as those on low ground killed by the frost, while apple crops, such as the Delicious and Smokehouse varieties where the buds were further developed than on later varieties, were also seriously damaged.

Peaches in general seemed to be hurt less than apples, although conditions varied from orchard to orchard.

More extensive damage was averted, at least in the northwestern part of the county by the fact that the low temperature Wednesday did not occur until around 3 a. m. and lasted

Fishermen Anxiously Await Opening Of Trout Season On Monday; Expect Good Catch

Next Monday is April 15, which to most persons means that it is April 15, and little else, but to the disciples of Isak Walton in Adams and adjoining counties this date means far more. It marks the opening of the trout season in Pennsylvania, an event to climax a long winter of tall stories and a spring devoted to oiling reels, tying flies and preparing gear.

For those who like to cast an enticing fly upon the white water or drop a fat worm in some deep pool and watch for the sudden rise of a rainbow or brown trout, life will begin to be worth living again, come Monday. Of course no orthodox trout fisherman would think of using worms—not if anybody was looking—but the country boy with his willow stick knows that this time of year the trout are hungry, and will take a worm as soon as a fly, and perhaps sooner.

Streams Well Stocked

From the State Fish Commission comes word that all streams have been well-stocked with legal-size trout for the opening. How many remain in Adams county streams is somewhat problematical. These streams do not have an abundance of feed for the hungry fish, so the streams are "fed" in an effort to induce the fish to stay in the county and not seek choicer feeding grounds farther downstream.

The state commission reports that some 1,092,000 brook, rainbow and brown trout have been placed in trout waters in the state. Many thousands of these have been placed in the Conewago and other streams in Adams county. In addition, many trout were put out last fall, and unless they have been taken by unscrupulous fishermen in violation of the law or have departed for other haunts, they should be ready for the lures next week.

Faithful to be Out

With a west wind and clear weather there should be good fishing next week. The moon does not reach its full until Tuesday, and old timers say there will be no big rise in temperature until after the moon changes, but the real devotees of Mr. Walton will be out, even if there is ice on their lines. Trout waters are reported in good condition. Absence of heavy snow in the mountains has kept the stream free of rocky conditions and spring rains have not disturbed them.

Real stormy weather on opening day will reduce fishing conditions from "good" to "fair" according to fishing charts and experience, while either an east or a north wind will hurt fishing. Best fishing will be coupled with a south or west wind, is the prediction.

An estimate of the number of fishing licenses issued thus far this year places the figure at approximately 1,000. Of this number 725 have been issued at the county treasurer's office in the court house. The license are also issued at hardware and sports goods stores in Gettysburg, McSherrystown and Littlestown.

Many Businesses To Mark Good Friday

Mares Sherman, chairman of the Retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said today that "a majority of the merchant-members of the Chamber will close their places of business from noon until 3 p. m. in observance of Good Friday next week."

For several years most of the business places of town have closed for three hours from 12 noon until 3 o'clock in the afternoon in observance of the church's Holy Day. The same custom is expected to prevail generally, this year.

LOCAL GIRL IS MARRIED TODAY

FAYETTEVILLE CITIZENS BALK BYPASS OF TOWN

Nearly 100 citizens of Fayetteville met this week with two representatives of the state Highways Department to protest recently announced state plans to by-pass Fayetteville in the proposed reconstruction of the Lincoln highway.

Carl F. Chapel, assistant Highways Department district engineer, and Joseph Bedard, construction engineer, met with the citizens to receive their views on the proposed highway relocation. The conference was arranged last week by Highways Secretary Ray Smock when he met with Franklin county commissioners and a representative committee from Fayetteville.

Pointing to the huge property damages that would result from the construction of a modern three-lane highway through the Greene Township village, the highway representatives said the by-pass was proposed in the interests of economy and safety to drivers and pedestrians alike. Measurements of the route indicated that to build a three-lane roadway through the village many houses would have to be relocated and most of the shade trees removed.

Suggest Two Lanes

The citizens attending the conference, held in the Fayetteville school building, were almost unanimous in their opposition to the by-pass plan. They argued that if a three-lane highway through the town would be impractical, the new road could be narrowed to two-lanes such as was done when the Lincoln highway was improved through St. Thomas.

The Highway Department representatives, however, pointed out that Fayetteville is much longer than St. Thomas, making the two-lane proposal less practical and also said that a 1940 traffic survey showed traffic on Route 30 much heavier east of Chambersburg than that recorded west of Chambersburg. The estimated cost of relocating the highway around Fayetteville, necessitating construction of approximately 3.2 miles of new road and one grade crossing overpass, was set at $374,000.

It was also pointed out that even with the construction of a two-lane highway through Fayetteville serious property damage would result and the citizens and motorists would be constantly faced with parking and traffic problems.

Only two persons attending the meeting spoke in favor of the proposed highway relocation.

No definite decisions were reached as a result of the conference. The Highways Department representatives, who indicated that the relocation plan was not on the 1946 calendar, said they would report the results of the meeting to their superiors.

DISCUSS COUNTY GIRL SCOUT UNIT

The possibility of effecting some type of organization on a county-wide basis for the 16 Girl Scout troops in the county was discussed Wednesday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the Adams County Girl Scout Leaders' club at the York Springs fire hall.

Miss Eleanor Hoover, Waynesboro Regional Girl Scout director, discussed some phases of the possible organization in a talk to the group in which she also outlined reports from a recent international convention of the Girl Scouts. At the present time the Girl Scout troops in Gettysburg, Littlestown, East Berlin, New Oxford, Abbottstown and York Springs are operating as separate units, with no overall organization similar to the York-Adams area council and district set-up of the Boy Scouts.

A meeting will be held in May at which executives of the Girl Scouts from Washington will meet with local residents to discuss plans for effecting the over-all organization, it was announced.

Miss Marian Tupper, Mrs. Mildred Kennedy and Mrs. Margaret Stough, leaders of the York Springs Girl Scout troops, were in charge of the meeting. Miss Tupper, it was announced, has accepted a position as a full-time Girl Scout director at Waynesboro.

Miss Catherine Ross, Gettysburg; Miss Mary Elder, Abbottstown, and Hildah Dutterer, Littlestown, were named as a nominating committee to report at the meeting May 8 at New Oxford. Approximately 300 girls are enrolled in the troops of the county.

COUNTY WOMAN INVOLVED IN 2 MISHAPS, 2 DAYS

Florence G. Rummel, 30, McKnightstown, was involved in two accidents in two days according to local state police.

Thursday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, according to state police, she stopped at the stop sign where the Mummaburg road intersects with the Biglerville-Narrows' road in Arendtsville and then pulled out into the intersection, crashing into a car driven by Warren H. Deardorff, Biglerville R. 2. Damage totalled $35 and no one was hurt.

About thirty hours previously she is alleged to have attempted to pass a truck on the Lincoln highway about two and a half miles west of here and hit another car approaching from the opposite direction.

As a result of the two accidents in two days she faces two charges. From Thursday's accident she will receive a summons from Justice of the Peace Martin Walter, Biglerville, on a charge of failing to yield the right of way. The information was laid by a member of the local sub-station of the state police. As a result of Wednesday's accident she will hear from Justice William Dentler, Cashtown, on a charge of making a pass in the face of oncoming traffic.

Bridge Collision

In between the Rummel accidents local state policemen found time to answer two hit-and-run accident calls that turned out to be one accident in which both drivers had stopped and both thought the other had continued on his way.

The accident occurred at 10:40 p. m. Wednesday evening, one-half mile north of here on the Harrisburg road. A Johnson milk truck, driven by William Miller, Elkland, was headed south. Walter Arnold Stone, Miami Dade, Fla., was headed north hauling a house trailer behind his car. The two met on the Rock Creek bridge and the trailer hit a mirror extending from the cab of the truck. The mirror hit Miller in the face, causing a number of cuts which were treated at the hospital. The trailer then smashed a sand box on the rear of the tractor part of the milk truck, getting gouged badly in the process. Total damage was $225.

No Prosecution

Both vehicles continued on a short distance. When they stopped they were screened from each other by brush. Miller called state police to say a hit-and-run driver had smashed his truck and fled. The local police were about to launch a search for the hit-and-run trailer when Stone called state police to complain that he had been hit by a milk truck that afterwards fled. State Policeman Frank Yercavage answered both calls. Enroute to the Stone car he picked up Miller. Later they met Stone.

The investigation disclosed, the officer said, that both had been close to the center of the highway on the narrow stretch between the bridge walls. No prosecution was made.

SEE SIGNS OF SOME ACTION FROM FRANCO

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Coincident with the indication that the United States and Britain will support a full hearing before the U.N. Security Council of Poland's charges against the Franco regime, there has been a remarkable development in Spain — two of Madrid's three morning newspapers yesterday published a belated announcement that America, England and France advised Spaniards to oust the generalissimo.

To get the full force of such publication, one must know that the Spanish press is absolutely under the thumb of the Franco dictatorship, as I observed when in Spain recently. It's my guess that this is the first time any Spanish newspaper has been permitted to publish anything even approaching such a damning statement regarding the Chief of State.

And what is the meaning of this strange lifting of the censorship for a brief moment? Well, the broad significance would seem to be clear: the generalissimo is getting set to meet the assault. Specifically, however, there is nothing to guide us as to whether the move means he is taking the offensive or whether it is a purely defensive—possibly conciliatory—action.

Also highly interesting, though far less startling, is the fact that the Spanish press yesterday printed the text of Poland's charge before the Security Council, to the effect that Spain is harboring German scientists who are working on destructive instruments of war. This accusation is calculated to bear out the claim that the Franco regime is a threat to international peace. Russia and France are expected to support Poland in this thesis.

Thus far the United States and Britain, while taking the strong measure of advising the Spanish people to throw out the Franco government, have maintained the position that the generalissimo was a domestic problem. The corollary to this would seem to be that Uncle Sam and John Bull, although they would be delighted to see Franco dispossessed, have no disposition to try to force Spain to accept another government selected by foreign nations but on the contrary hope to see the change effected by a full expression of public opinion at the polls.

It's hard to see how Franco can expect to hang on indefinitely with most if not all of the United Nations against him. Sooner or later he must permit the Spanish people to express their will. So it wouldn't be strange if he were maneuvering into position for a plebiscite now, and that might be the explanation of the strange announcement in the Madrid press that the three western allies advise the Spanish people to oust him.

leaders and statesmen in recognizing that it was largely because of Mr. Roosevelt "that civilization has survived," and added that "only history can do him full justice."

The New Deal, Mr. Truman said, became the realization of "the great hope" which "in an hour of extreme crisis" Mr. Roosevelt gave to the American people.

Its principles, he said, "have today become an accepted part of our way of life."

Accepts Shrine

In accepting custody of the Roosevelt estate as a national historical site, Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug stressed that it will be shared by people of all nations.

"The people he loved will come here," he said, "young people, poor people, aliens, and neighbors, men who are freer men because he lived. Statesmen from many lands will come; sometimes weary and disheartened from their struggle with the problems of the day. May his memory deliver all of them from selfishness and from greed. May he forever share with all who come something of his timeless qualities—his contagious vitality, his gallant courage, and his infinite compassion."

Orphanage May Get Share In Estate

The sum of $1,000 is awarded to First Methodist church of Hanover in an adjudication of the estate of Anna Garber Davis, late of Hanover, handed down Thursday by Judge Harvey A. Gross in Orphans court, York.

The sum of $2,000 also is awarded to the Mercantile Trust company of Baltimore in trust, the net income to be paid annually to the same church, and, if it loses its identity as a Methodist church for any reason, the income is to be paid to the Hoffman orphanage of near Littlestown, under the terms of her will.

The trust fund is to be known as the Davis Garber-Ann C. Davis Memorial, for which fund the executor shall purchase two $1,000 U. S. Treasury bonds (series G).

A niece, Elizabeth Eckert Garber, is the chief beneficiary and is awarded $38,567.24.

State Sues To Get Excess Fees

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP)—Attorney General James H. Duff filed suit in the Dauphin county court today to collect $88,319, together with interest, from Register of Wills John H. Huston of Allegheny county.

The money, the commonwealth claimed, is due in excess fees for the collection of inheritance and estate taxes by Huston for the state since 1937.

Duff also filed a second action, asking the court to compel Huston to produce all books and records relating to the funds, invoking the powers of Auditor General G. Harold G. Wagner under a 1929 law already attacked by Huston.

President Judge William M. Hargest immediately issued an order requiring Huston to show why he should not produce the records, and gave him 15 days to answer.

DEMS PROTEST "BONER" MOVE

Washington, April 12 (AP)—A group of House Democrats today called for a party caucus to consider what one of them termed a "boner" by the Democratic National committee.

The action to which they object was a recent letter from Democratic headquarters to the party's county chairmen advising them to "select proper candidates" for Congress.

The protesting Democrats circulated a petition describing the letter as a reflection on present officeholders. It was the second intra-party clash within a fortnight.

Richard R. Nacy, executive vice chairman of the National committee, termed the whole affair an "error."

Nacy sent a telegram to at least one Democrat, Rep. O'Toole of New York, advising him of the mistake. The telegram, as given out by O'Toole, said:

"If within the last few days a letter went out of this office addressed to the county chairmen of your district urging them to select proper candidates for Congress it was so addressed through error."

MURPHY LIKELY FOR JUDGESHIP

Washington, April 12 (AP)—Rep. Murphy (D-Pa.) today regained the lead among 30-odd candidates for a vacant Pennsylvania Federal Judgeship but the state's two Democratic Senators are not expected to act on it before next week.

Senator Guffey left town last night without having received official notice, his office said, of the action of Lackawanna County Democratic leaders in announcing their endorsement of Murphy for the judgeship. He is not expected back until tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Senator Myers is leaving Washington today to be gone for about a week. He told a reporter that there would be no opportunity for him and Guffey to discuss the judgeship until he returned late in the week from Oklahoma, where he is making Jackson Day dinner addresses Monday and Tuesday nights.

The endorsement of the party leaders in his home county placed Murphy back in front on the speculative list, which he had topped for weeks until his county leaders on March 25 suddenly announced their support for 38-year-old Lackawanna County Common Pleas Judge M. J. Eagen. They announced their change of mind in Scranton yesterday.

The Eagen suggestion had been received coolly by the senators, because his elevation to the federal bench would enable Republican Governor Edward Martin to appoint a Republican to the Lackawanna bench. This would reverse the balance of power on the three-judge county court from Democratic to Republican.

HEAVY DAMAGE

Severe damage to Franklin county fruit crops was also reported by an Associated Press dispatch from Chambersburg.

A dip below freezing temperature wiped-out the peach crop completely in some sections, and cut it by 25 to 50 per cent in others, reported Charles P. Fague, assistant Franklin county farm agent, and L. O. Weaver, plant pathologist of the Pennsylvania State college.

Nearly all of the center buds—the best fruit-producers—in the clusters of five on apple trees were killed they found after a tour of Franklin county.

All sour cherry blossoms were killed in one section of the county, they added.

Unable to translate the damage into dollars or bushels, they estimated, however, that it was as severe as that of last May, which cut Franklin county's fruit crop below 50 per cent of normal.

Mrs. Frederick E. Griest, of Flora Dale, attended a meeting of the Hanover Hood college club Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Olive Fisher in Hanover.

Increase Prices Of Oranges And Lemons

Washington, April 12 (AP)—An OPA official said today that price ceilings for oranges, lemons and tangerines will be increased slightly next week.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the increase at retail will be "negligible — a fraction of a cent a pound."

Producers' ceilings will be hiked, the official said, because of a legal requirement that prices be adjusted upward as farmers' costs increase.

He said the producers' increase in the far west will be about 20 cents a box for oranges, 28 cents for lemons and 22 cents for tangerines. The increase in other producing areas will be slightly less, he said.

She admitted taking the three-year-old boy from near his home March 27.

"Why did you do this?" Judge Gordon asked after detectives read her confession.

"I don't know, I had no intention to do anything," she replied.

BLIND VET DIVORCED
Pittsburgh, April 12 (AP)—Thirty-four-year-old Edward A. Phillips of Elizabeth township—army veteran blinded by shrapnel on D-Day in Normandy—was granted a divorce yesterday after he claimed his wife "neglected me day and night. . . . She wanted to get rid of me."

MEXICAN LOOP WILL FOLD UP CLAIMS TINKER

By CHRIS MACGILL

Tallahassee, Fla., April 12 (P)—Joe Tinker, of the Chicago Cubs' immortal Tinker to Evers to Chance infield combination, today predicted that none of the American baseball players who have signed with the Mexican league will stick it out south of the border.

"I don't think much of the league and to tell you the truth, I don't think any of the ball players will want to live down there," the stocky rearing former shortstop declared. "I don't think they'll fit in and they have no assurance that they're going to stay down there. The league might bust up."

Tinker was the first major league player to "jump" to the short-lived outflow federal league in 1914, following his sale by Cincinnati to Brooklyn in a winter transaction. When Tinker was refused a part of the purchase price, he signed a federal contract as playing manager of the new Chicago Whales.

Desire Curbed

Tinker said the return to this country of Catcher Mickey Owen of the Brooklyn Dodgers would help curb any desire on the part of other major leaguers to make the jump to the Mexican league.

"Owen made a mistake," Tinker asserted, commenting that Brooklyn dodger President Branch Rickey won't even keep him in the ball club.

Tinker forecast that Mexico would be unable to support a league of the caliber of the National or American leagues of the United States and said he thought the Pasquel enterprise was "just a publicity stunt" to draw attention to Mexico.

"I don't believe it'll go very far," he observed, adding that league President Jorge Pasquel's system is not going to make it go.

"This idea of one man operating five teams in a single league isn't going to work."

Tinker, in Tallahassee to visit his son, Joe Tinker, Jr., is scouting the minors for the Boston Braves.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, April 12 (P)—Herman Keiser, tabbed the slowest golfer since Cyril Walker won the open, played the first three rounds of the Augusta Masters tournament wearing an old pair of dungarees turned up around his ankles. . . . For the final day he came out wearing his "Sunday pants" and shot his worst round of the tournament. . . . California Bill Kyne, a bidder for the Suffolk Downs race track, wants to have Massachusetts people in for at least half the deal. . . . Dan Reeves, who pulled a fast one on the rival football league by switching his Cleveland Rams to Los Angeles, made another quick switch to get himself a California home. He traded his New York apartment for Actor Basil Rathbone's house. Meantime Chile and Adam Walsh, native Californians, are living in hotels.

SHORTS AND SHELLS

Carl Heidel, star southpaw of the Colgate U. baseball team, suffered a severe shrapnel wound in his pitching hand while on the Siegfried line. . . . Delacey, one of the best brood-mares in America, has a son, a grandson and a granddaughter eligible for the Kentucky Derby—Pot Likker, Little Tip and Hash-camp. . . . Stu Adams, star Radnor, Pa., high school basketball, is reported heading for Long Island U. though west coast schools also have been bidding for him. . . . Baltimore's police department golfers have booked matches with cops from New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Norfolk. On whose beat? . . . When Z. G. Clevenger, Indiana U. athletic director, completed 22 years of perfect attendance in the Bloomington Rotary club he was rewarded with a cigarette lighter. He doesn't smoke.

PLENTY OF TIME

Chuck McFarland, Penn State's 25-year-old pre-war first baseman, was somewhat overweight when he returned to the diamond and Coach Joe Bedenk has been giving him plenty of ribbing about his trouble getting down for ground balls. . . . When one went through Chuck the other day, Bedenk shouted: "Hey, McFarland, what are you going to do when you're 45?" . . . Mac shot right back: "Get a job as Penn State baseball coach."

'Siege Gun' Teams Take Alleys Today

Buffalo, N. Y., April 12 (P)—A number of the nation's big "siege gun" teams were scheduled to take to the alleys today at the American Bowling Congress' world championship tournament.

Listed among them were the 1,000-average Canny Trucking company five of Binghamton, N. Y., and the E and H Coal squad of Philadelphia led by Tommy Marotta, who holds a 212-average in the Philadelphia major league.

No changes in any of the divisions went on the boards after last night's desultory bowling.

'Publicity Stunt' Is Charged To Mayor

Pittsburgh, April 12 (P)—The editors of the Pittsburgh Bulletin-Index assert city council and Mayor David L. Lawrence "coerced" the Pittsburgh Pirates into changing their opening game from Good Friday to Saturday, April 20, and that their action was "the worst display of political hypocrisy Pittsburgh has ever witnessed."

Telegrams which the weekly magazine sent to the mayor, Governor Edward Martin and Allegheny County District Attorney Artemas Leslie yesterday declared:

Editors were "appalled at the lack of fortitude of the mayor and city council in not closing all saloons, cocktail bars, theaters and other places of amusement on Good Friday, while on the other hand covering the Pittsburgh baseball club to postpone its opening game on that day."

"We regard it as rank discrimination against individuals and an untoward bid for cheap publicity," the telegrams continued. "Unless complete closing of all places of entertainment is effected, we must consider this the worst display of political hypocrisy Pittsburgh has ever witnessed."

Buffalo Stays In Hockey Cup Fight

Buffalo, N. Y., April 12 (P)—The Buffalo Bisons were back in the fight for the American Hockey league's Calder cup today, having scored a 6-1 triumph over the Cleveland Barons in the fifth game of their final playoff series last night.

The Barons now hold a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series. If the Bisons win in Cleveland tomorrow night, the deciding game will be played here Sunday.

With Roger Leger, the league's most valuable player, restored to regular duty, the Bisons showed much of their old form. Leger was credited with three assists and excellent defensive play.

Farmer John Marsh Loses New Round

Carlisle, Pa., April 12 (P)—Farmer John Marsh has lost another round in his long battle against vaccination of his children—a battle that has resulted in his incarceration on contempt of court charges.

Judge Fred S. Reese yesterday committed 12-year-old Betty Jane Marsh to the care of the Cumberland County Welfare Services with instructions that she be vaccinated.

Marsh, arrested last January on charges that he refused to have Betty Jane and her brother, Marlin, 14, vaccinated as a requisite to school attendance, had told the court he did not know where the children were. Judge Reese jailed him then on contempt charges, but Marsh was released later.

Betty Jane was found Saturday by state police, but Marlin still is unlocated. Marsh has contended he is against vaccination on the grounds that it made one of his children ill 11 years ago.

Spaniards in Cuba began to import Negro slaves as early as 1521. American Indians domesticated about 40 plants.

PLAN GUARD ALLOCATIONS

Harrisburg, April 12 (P)—Key officers of the new Pennsylvania National Guard were called to the state capitol today to plot the allocation of battalions, companies and batteries to communities throughout Pennsylvania.

Maj. Gen. E. J. Stackpole of Harrisburg, commanding officer of the 28th Division and ranking officers of all the state's national guard units, said the immediate problem is to decide on home bases for elements of the division, the separate 11th Regimental Combat Team, the Anti-Aircraft Brigade and a proposed air wing of several squadrons.

The planners include Brig. Gen. Brenton G. Wallace of Rosemont, artillery commander in the 28th Division; Brig. Gen. Daniel B. Strickler of Lancaster, assistant division commander; Brig. Gen. Charles C. Curtis of Allentown, anti-aircraft commander; and the four infantry regimental commanders—Cols. Jay Cooke of Philadelphia, Thomas L. Hoben of Scranton, Kenneth C. Momeyer of Erie and Frank W. Murphy of Washington, Pa.

Details will not be announced, Stackpole said, until after recommendations have been made to Governor Martin and the War Department.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

COMPANIONSHIP

I wonder if we are not losing out on one of the most inspiring of all relationships—that of genuine companionship. It's much more elastic than mere friendship. There is an intimate charm to the very sound of the word, for it suggests closeness and unity of thought and association.

Unions between parties can be made, but without companionship. It goes further than mere union. It suggests a co-operation of mental and spiritual forces. Companionship between nations would mean no quarrelling, no mistrust, no envy, and no name calling. Companionship suggests a higher level of attainment.

For years I have remembered a remark that I overheard from a returning group of golfers. One man said: "Well, next to having won the game oneself is to lose to a delightful companion." You see, there is length and breadth to companionship. In marriage it is the one eternal binding that keeps love green and fragrant.

You read in the newspapers advertisements for "a companion." Loneliness is devastating. We want someone near to us, to be a companion, to talk to, to relate our problems to, to counsel with us, to set us on right paths, and to cheer us when we are low. The companion fulfills a dozen or more duties, and they are delightful, if the companion is a true and genuine one.

A mere associate in business may not prove to be a good companion. Companionship suggests so much more—it has enduring qualities to it. Companionship can even be carried into the realm of Nature, where all its fascinating and intriguing forces attract the mind and interest. W. H. Hudson, the great naturalist, brings out this idea in his character of Rima, the "bird woman," whose companionship with all the inanimate, in nature, were of her one great part. It is all told in Hudson's beautiful book, "Green Mansions."

Thoreau's human companions were limited, but not those that filled his mind and heart all the days of his life, and whose relationships have filled the pages of his books, so eagerly read today, enriching all literature for all time.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Joy of Unloading."

By JACK BELL
(Associated Press Political Reporter)

Washington, April 12 (AP)—President Truman piloted Democratic political policy steadfastly left of center today as he began his second year in the White House.

With a statement that he stands solidly behind federal legislation to abolish state poll taxes and to establish a permanent fair employment practice commission, the president emphasized he is not veering from the broad objectives laid down by his predecessor.

At the same time Mr. Truman scotched any thought of some Southern elements of the party that he might be asking political peace with them.

Mixed Reactions
There were indications, too, that the chief executive would fortify this position by reiterating his desire for passage of what he has classed as progressive legislation when he speaks later in the day at the Hyde Park grave of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Truman's reaffirmed support of anti-poll tax and FEPC measures "and all similar legislation," came at a crowded White House news conference yesterday.

As expected, it provoked mixed reaction among Capitol Hill Democrats. Some privately read into it White House support for an announced CIO campaign to purge Southern members of Congress who fight such measures.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), promised a new effort to bring the anti-poll tax measure before the Senate at this session—a move certain to bring a program-interrupting filibuster from Dixie Democrats.

ANNOUNCE NEW BURN OINTMENT

Atlantic City, N. J., April 12 (AP)—Development of a new "acid ointment" for burns, which removes dead skin painlessly—without need of a surgeon's knife or brushing—was announced today to the American Chemical Society.

The ointment—for treatment of second degree burns—was described by Drs. Albert M. Mattocks and Wilber A. Lazier of Southern Research Institute, Birmingham, Ala. They told the chemists, who complete their 109th meeting today, that the ointment was basically a dry, stable, easily wettable powder. When water is added it is a clear, jelly-like substance, the doctors said, adding its action was to remove the dead skin from the burn surface "without pain or the destruction of islands of living tissue."

At the same time, Dr. M. Spiegel-Adolf and a group of colleagues from Temple U. announced a new technique for detecting brain concussions. It consists of employing invisible, ultra-violet light rays, directed against a sample of cerebrospinal fluid tapped from a patient thought to have a concussion.

If a concussion is present, cells in the sample of spinal fluid will be disturbed in such a way as to absorb rays of the ultra-violet light—and this absorption can be measured, the doctors said. If there is no concussion, the cells in the fluid will absorb none of the invisible rays.

square, has returned from Milton, Massachusetts, where she spent the past seven weeks.

WORLD LEADERS SEE DEDICATION OF FDR SHRINE

By ALLAN FISHER

Hyde Park, N. Y., April 12 (AP)—United Nations leaders join President Truman today in dedicating as a national shrine the green acres and the old Hudson river mansion of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who died one year ago today.

The ceremonies, from 2:30 to 3:00 p. m. (EST), include:

An eight-minute dedicatory address by Mr. Truman from the front porch where the late President customarily greeted his neighbors on victorious election nights.

700 Special Guests

Formal presentation by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug of the house, the century-old rose garden in which her husband is buried, and the surrounding 33-acres of land, comprising an estate which has been in the Roosevelt family since 1867.

Chairs were placed on the wide expanse of lawn before the house for 700 special guests, including members of the United Nations security council.

Members of the cabinet, the supreme court and congress, were invited to represent official Washington.

The scene of the ceremonies gave the impression of an open air theater. Standing space was provided the public behind the seating section and among the trees of the park which extends for some distance before the house.

Big Radio Hookup

The department of interior said the radio hookup for broadcasting the ceremonies was the greatest since V-J Day.

President Truman was expected to remain here not more than an hour. Leaving Washington by plane about noon for Stewart Field, on the U. S. Military academy reservation, he planned to motor to the Roosevelt estate and return to the capital in time for supper.

The program called for an invocation by the Rev. Dr. George W. W. Anthony, rector of St. James Episcopal church in Hyde Park, of which Mr. Roosevelt was a life-long member, benediction by Rabbi Jerome Unger, of nearby Poughkeepsie and singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Marian Anderson.

Restored to 1940

Five months of work by department of the interior specialist have restored the interior of the house in accordance with photographs taken in 1940.

Mr. Roosevelt deeded the house and 33-acres to the government and Congress accepted it as an historic site by an act passed July 18, 1939. Last November Mrs. Roosevelt, her four sons and one daughter, waived their lifetime claims to the estate.

"We have tried to make the house look as if President Roosevelt might be coming back for a week-end," George A. Palmer, superintendent of the estate for the department of the interior, said.

Chapter 8

The new adventurer was of medium height, and seemed to be rather slender than strongly built. His suit of armor was of the finest and the device on his shield was a young oak-tree pulled up by the roots, with the Spanish word Deschizado, signifying.

The champion ascended the platform, and, to the astonishment of all present, riding straight up to the central pavilion, struck with the sharp end of his spear the shield of Brian de Bois-Guilbert until it rung again. All stood astonished at his presumption, but none more than the redoubtable Knight whom he had thus defied to mortal combat, and who, little expecting so rude a challenge, was standing carelessly at the door of the pavilion.

"Take your place in the lists," said Bois-Guilbert, "and look your last upon the sun, for this night thou shalt sleep in paradise."

When the two champions stood opposed to each other at the two extremities of the lists, the public expectation was strained to the highest pitch. Few augured the possibility that the encounter could terminate well for the Disinherited Knight, yet his courage and gallantry secured the general good wishes of the spectators.

The trumpets had no sooner given the signal, than the champions vanished from their posts with the speed of lightning, and closed in the center of the lists with the shock of a thunderbolt. The lances burst into shivers up to the very grasp, and it seemed at the moment that both knights had fallen, for the shock had made each horse recoil backwards upon its haunches. The address of the riders recovered their steeds by use of the bridle and spur, and having glared on each other for an instant with eyes which seemed to flash fire through the bars of their visors, each made a demi-volte, and, retiring to the extremity of the lists, received a fresh lance from the attendants.

A loud shout from the spectators, waving of scarfs and handkerchiefs, and general acclamations, testified the interest taken by the spectators in this encounter; the most equal, as well as the best performed, which had graced the day. But no sooner had the knights resumed their station, hushed into a silence, so deep and so dead, that it seemed the multitude were afraid even to breathe.

A few minutes' pause having been allowed, that the combatants and their horses might recover breath. Prince John with his trumpet signed to the trumpets to sound the onset. The champions a second time sprung from their stations, and closed in the center of the lists, with the same speed, the same dexterity, the same violence, but not the same equal fortune as before.

In this second encounter, the Templar aimed at the center of his antagonist's shield, and struck it so fair and forcibly, that his spear went to shivers, and the Disinherited Knight reeled in his saddle. On the other hand, that champion had, fair and true hit the Norman on the visor, where his lance's point kept hold of the bars. Yet, even at this disadvantage, the Templar sustained his high reputation; and had not the girths of his saddle burst, he might not have been unhorsed. As it chanced, however, saddle horse, and man rolled on the ground under a cloud of dust.

To extricate himself from the stirrups and fallen steed, was to the Templar scarce the work of a moment; and, stung with madness, both at his disgrace and at the acclamations with which it was hailed by the spectators, he drew his sword and waved it in defiance of his conqueror. The Disinherited Knight sprung from his steed, and also unsheathed his sword. The marshals of the field, however, spurred their horses between them, and reminded them that the laws of the tournament did not, on the present occasion, permit this species of encounter.

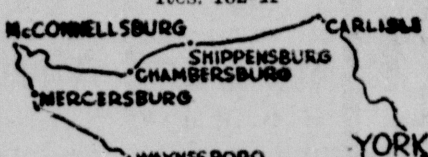

"We shall meet again, I trust," said the Templar, casting a resentful glance at his antagonist; "and where there are none to separate us."

"If we do not," said the Disinherited Knight, "the fault shall not be mine. On foot or horseback, with

General Facts About Insects

Most losses suffered in ornamental and food plants from attacks of insects can be entirely prevented or so greatly reduced that they are negligible. But at this time of the year it should be doubly emphasized that knowledge must ever take precedence over insecticides, that knowing the particular insect's habits is often more essential than actual spraying. In other words, plans for gardening and fruit growing must, like the military preparations for battle, include knowledge of the enemy's strength, equipment and methods of attack.

Here are a few general facts about insect foes which should be studied thoroughly:

Plant lice are sap-sucking in habit. They have no true mouth parts, therefore, they are incapable of taking poisons into their digestive tracts on the plant parts they eat. This means they must be combated by direct contact with the insect's body. Stomach poisons, such as lead arsenate, calcium arsenate, Paris green and others, are ineffective for killing plant lice.

And there is a group of sap-sucking bugs, including prominently the squash bug, often called "stink bug," which cannot be controlled by stomach poisons. In most cases these pests, which are so rugged to be killed by contact insecticides, must be kept under control by hand-picking and similar measures.

Cutworms and root maggots usually attack the stem bases and roots of young plants. These pests must be controlled by other than spraying. Cutworms are quite easily killed by distributing a poisoned bait in late evening after they arrive; root maggots, of which the cabbage is a notable example, can be combated by use of a corrosive sublimate solution poured around the plants at transplanting time or by fitting squares of tarred paper around the stems. Beetles are numerous, the destructive Mexican bean beetle is a well known example. Here both the mature beetle and the immature larva (slug) feed on bean foliage. The striped cucumber beetle is another. It too feeds in both the mature and slug form. All beetles require a stomach insecticide, a poison that causes death when taken into the insect's digestive tract on the vegetation it eats.

In the case of plant lice (aphids) the insecticide must be applied to the insect's body to cause death; with chewing pests, like beetles, the insecticide must coat the insect's food. This distinction is important to permit effective spraying or dusting.

Caterpillars are actually the larvae or slug forms of moths or beetles. The cutworm is the caterpillar of a small moth; the white grub is the caterpillar form of the well known June Beetle; the corn ear worm is the caterpillar of a small moth.

Where caterpillars eat plant foliage they are controlled by various measures, designed according to the particular pest's feeding habits. The tomato hornworm must be hand-picked. Many caterpillars attacking shade trees must be killed by a stomach insecticide. The corn earworm is best controlled by injecting a mineral oil into the silks to destroy the moth's unhatched eggs.

CONSERVATIVES GAIN MAJORITY IN JAP VOTING

Tokyo, April 12 (AP)—Thirty-three members of the 1942 "Tojo Diet" definitely were reelected and 40 other former members were returned to the House of Representatives on the basis of final returns tonight from all but six districts in the nationwide election.

Conservatives apparently had clinched a total majority, although the leading liberal party was nowhere near control.

With 394 of the House of Representatives' 468 seats decided, women had won 32.

Records To Be Checked

All of the 1942 Representatives re-elected had passed an examination of their records but all candidates elected will be subject to another check—and possible disqualification—before they can be seated. Several of the other 40 former legislators had been disqualified by former Premier Hideki Tojo's regime and only now are returning to politics.

By tonight the party lineup of definitely won seats was Liberals 116, Progressives 86, Social Democrats 78, Communists three, with three others apparently certain of victory; minor parties 39 and Independents 72.

Borers are almost wholly immune to insecticides. They, too, require combat according to the particular pests habits.

The best course of preparation is to write the editor in all cases of doubt, asking questions before the problem arrives.

Communists Weak

This lineup means an enforced coalition in the House, which doubtless will be dominated by a conservative viewpoint. Many Social Democrats and probably most of the Independents fall into this category under modern Japanese political conditions. The Socialists, however, showed surprising strength.

The Communists' three assured, and probable six seats were fewer than the 12 conceded them in pre-election prognostications.

Home Minister Chuza Mitsuichi reported to the cabinet that the nation-wide average vote was 72.3 per cent — "Generally better than expected."

SLAYER CAUGHT IN TENNESSEE; TO BE EXECUTED

Knoxville, Tenn., April 12 (AP)—The nation's most hunted criminal—Killer Earl McFarland—was back behind bars today, awaiting removal to Washington and eventual death in the electric chair.

The 24-year-old ex-marine, who was captured here yesterday on a street corner a block from city jail by two FBI agents, said "my goose is cooked and I'm ready to go," and added that he would not fight extradition to Washington.

FBI Agent Norman H. McCabe said McFarland, who escaped from the District of Columbia jail April 3 in company with another condemned killer, Joseph D. Medley, was being held in Knox county jail under $100,000 bond pending a removal hearing tomorrow at 11 a. m. (EST).

Sought Out Friends
McCabe said two agents in an automobile saw McFarland standing on a street corner "like he was waiting for a car," and added that "they stopped immediately and took him into custody."

The tow-headed youth, who steadfastly denied his guilt in an interview with reporters, asserted he came to Knoxville Friday—"hitch-hiking and hobnobbing."

He said he had spent the last five nights of his short-lived freedom living in the open "just like we used to do on Guadalcanal when I was with the First Marine Division."

He had returned to his native Tennessee seeking help from friends and relatives, he continued. He was shabbily-dressed in blue shirt, blue denim overalls, white sweat shirt and brown hat when captured, and had only one cent in his pockets, McCabe said.

Plan Conservation Course For Teachers

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP)—The Department of Public Instruction today announced that establishment of a conservation education laboratory for teachers at the Pennsylvania State college July 1 will be "another vigorous attack on the waste, the misuse and the destruction" of natural resources.

Dr. Henry Klonower, director of teacher education and certification, said "if teachers in the classrooms are made aware of the importance of maintaining the natural resources of this state, the emerging generation can be taught that it, too, will realize its obligations."

He said the laboratory, sponsored by the college with the cooperation of state departments concerned with conservation, will be open July 1 through July 20 and July 22 through August 10. The same admission requirements will apply to those for summer sessions at Penn State.

To Train Officers At Carlisle Barracks

Washington, April 12 (AP)—The army announced Thursday it will train 2,400 officers and civilians for military government posts during the next 18 months, indicating it expects the occupation of defeated Axis countries to last some time.

The group, destined for service in Europe and the Pacific, will be trained at a newly established school at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. The first class begins May 10.

The new school replaces a school of military government at Charlottesville, Va., which was closed recently. More than 3,000 officers were trained there during the war.

Organize For Care Of Aging In State

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Association for care of the Aging, temporarily formed by representatives of old age institutions throughout the commonwealth advanced plans today for a permanent organization.

The group named the Rev. William T. Swaim, Jr., of Mt. Holly Springs, as its temporary chairman, and Miss Lulu Sachs, of Philadelphia, temporary secretary.

An executive committee was picked yesterday to draft plans for the permanent association consisting of the Rev. Dr. Edgar R. Heckman, Tyrone; Mrs. Jane Vanderveen, Newville; and Mrs. Esther Fortstrand, Philadelphia.

MAKE WOODS A CASH CROP

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP)—Pennsylvania farmers are learning there is money in the old, neglected woodlot. Secretary James A. Kell of the Department of Forests and Waters said today more than a dozen men, graduates of forestry schools, have been assigned to the offices of district foresters to aid farmers, especially in northwestern Pennsylvania, turn the full-grown trees on their farms into cash crops.

"There is usually an acre, five acres or more of woods on every farm," a department spokesman explained, "but most farmers don't realize their value."

The farm foresters, he continued, visit the farms and "cruise" the woodlots, marking the trees containing marketable timber and showing the owners how to trim out unwanted scrub and brush.

"Farmers in the past, if they cut woodlands at all, did so indiscriminately," the spokesman said. "Now the farm foresters, without any cost to farmers, show him what trees to cut and what trees to save so that he has a cash crop each year. In many cases, farmers are making enough off their woodlots to pay the taxes on their farms."

The department, he added, expects eventually to have a farm forester for every county.

TRUMAN FLAYS ADMIRALS FOR MERGER FIGHT

Washington, April 12 (AP)—In shocked and angry silence the Navy department held aloof today from wide speculation that top-berth resignations might follow President Truman's biting blast at admirals and others opposing his armed forces merger program.

Immediate conjecture centered on whether Secretary of the Navy Forrestal might decide to quit now instead of waiting until summer, and whether Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of naval operations, would request retirement. Both have vigorously fought the merger.

There was no question that Mr. Truman had the gloves off when he pointedly notified the navy where he stood. He used the words propaganda and lobbying in speaking of continued opposition, and said the public was interested in facts instead.

Expected To Follow
The President, told his news conference yesterday that, while individual naval officers are entitled to voice their honest opinions, he expected both Navy and War departments to support the unification policy when he, as Commander-in-Chief, once established it.

Mr. Truman's sharp words took the Navy department completely by surprise. Forrestal, who had been ill at his home for several days, had no immediate comment. The same went for the uniformed high command.

Up until yesterday, all recent reports represented Forrestal as intending to remain in office until about July 1, the beginning of the new government fiscal year.

Navy Fight "Unjustified"
The presidential views on merger opposition came when he was asked about the far-reaching unification bill recommended by a Senate Military subcommittee after months of preparation.

Mr. Truman said he had read the bill, that it had a lot of good points but he was not passing upon legislation until Congress had acted upon it.

Reporters inquired whether the navy would be allowed to continue to fight unification. Mr. Truman replied it was not justified in making a fight after he announced his decision in favor of unification. Then he hit into admirals and others who still oppose the plan.

Labor Conventions To Be Held Soon

Harrisburg, April 12 (AP)—Pennsylvania labor's gains and its continuing efforts for favorable legislation will be brought to the front in two major conventions within the next month—both before the state's primary election May 21.

The Pennsylvania Industrial Union Council (CIO) will take the stage first, meeting at Pittsburgh April 30 to May 2.

The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor (AFL) holds its first full-scale convention since 1944, May 6 to 10, at Philadelphia.

Each group claims to represent 650,000 Pennsylvania workmen and women. Both labor organizations assert the 1946 sessions will reach new peaks of enthusiasm among its members as a consequence of the recent wage gains. But leaders are keeping an eye cocked on economic and political trends, as well.

Flood Control To Aid Stream Cleanup

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Construction of the proposed East Clarion river flood control reservoir, will help Ridgway and Johnsonburg, Pa., comply with state anti-stream pollution laws, the House flood control committee heard yesterday.

Dr. James H. Greene, executive vice president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, told the committee that although the proposed dam is designed primarily for flood control, it will regulate water flow and dilute wastes and pollution, thus "materially" alleviating "the grossly polluted condition of the entire Clarion river."

He said Johnsonburg and Ridgway are required to reduce pollution from wastes and sewage to specified degrees under the stream pollution law enacted by the last legislature.

The East Clarion reservoir has already been authorized by Congress and a $500,000 initial appropriation for it was inserted by the Senate in the 1947 war department civil functions appropriation bill, which is now in conference.

The boat had been tied up for repairs at the Zubic Towing & Dredging company's landing on the northside. Thousands lined river banks and bridges to watch the fire burn furiously for a half hour.

ATOMIC TESTS TO BE MADE ON OR NEAR JULY 1

Washington, April 12 (AP)—President Truman, who once postponed atomic bomb tests in the Pacific, said today these tests are of vital importance and he had been assured the new target dates would be met.

He issued a formal statement on the subject, but without any explanation of why he selected this particular time to give his views. However, Senator Huffman (D., Ohio) recently introduced a resolution calling for cancellation of tests.

Mr. Truman said the experiments at Bikini atoll should provide information "essential to intelligent planning in the future and an evaluation of the effect of atomic energy on our defense establishments."

The first of two tests of the bomb against warships was set originally for May 15. Mr. Truman postponed it for about six weeks, saying that many congressmen wanted to witness the trials but would be unable to do so at that time.

Truman's Statement
The joint army-navy task for conducting the tests expects to hold the first one on July 1 or as near that date as the weather permits. The initial experiment involves the explosion of an atom bomb in the air above the target ships. The second will be an underwater explosion. Mr. Truman's statement today added:

"Without the information from these experiments, designers of ships, aircraft and military ground equipment, as well as our strategists, tacticians, and medical officers will be working in ignorance regarding the effects of this revolutionary new weapon against naval and other targets not previously exposed to it."

"These tests, which are in the nature of a laboratory experiment, should give us the information which is essential to intelligent planning in the future and an evaluation of the effect of atomic energy in our defense establishments."

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ENDS FIRST CENTURY

By SCOTTY MACDONALD

Philadelphia, April 12 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad — sprawling empire of transport born of the Keystone state's efforts to uphold Philadelphia as the nation's financial and commercial center—observes the 100th anniversary of its charter tomorrow.

On April 13, 1846, Pennsylvania Governor Francis Rawn Shunk signed a legislative act incorporating the railroad, giving it authority to construct a line 249 miles long from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh.

Today the railroad operates in 13 busy industrial states and the District of Columbia. It serves the industrial east and connects the Atlantic seaboard through its terminals in Chicago and St. Louis with the vast western regions of the country. It gives New England a connecting rail link with the south and west.

Has A "Navy" Too

The PRR has 4,848 locomotives, 7,299 units of steel passenger car equipment, 240,293 units of freight car equipment and 5,614 pieces of work equipment. It has even a "navy" of boats and barges—378 units of equipment for marine operation.

All this came about because Pennsylvanians foresaw the need of a railroad across the state.

To the north, the Erie Canal opened in 1825 and attracted much trade and traffic that could have moved through Pennsylvania. What later became the New York Central Railroad system was under construction.

To the south, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was being extended westward, giving Baltimore a potential opportunity to receive the new west's trade.

Service Extended

Not until December 10, 1852, was a continuous single track railroad opened for business between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Its pioneers realized their purpose—to build the shortest rail transportation line linking the areas east and west of the Alleghenies.

John Edgar Thomson, first chief engineer and third president of the PRR, is credited with laying solid groundwork for the system by extending financial assistance to help complete railroads being built by others in Ohio and Indiana.

Gradual extension of rail service from Pittsburgh to Chicago was hastened by substantial investments to help the Ohio and Pennsylvania, the Ohio and Indiana, and the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroads complete their lines.

Actual consolidation of the lines between Pittsburgh and Chicago was effected in 1869. Meanwhile, construction of other important rail lines was under way, reaching for St. Louis and other midwestern cities.

Started Electrifications

In the east, the PRR was extended to Jersey City, its terminal there at first linked to New York by ferry, and to Washington. Completion of tunnels under the Hudson and East rivers, one of the PRR's notable engineering achievements, led to construction and opening in the fall of 1910 of the railroad's New York city Pennsylvania station. The project, which included construction of Hell Gate bridge over New York's East river to connect with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, cost $112,000,000.

Then came electrification. In 1902 the PRR started electrifying the Long Island railroad which it had acquired. Today it has 194 electrified miles between Harrisburg and New York and 226 electrified miles between Washington and New York.

Participating in and surviving the great financial battles of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, the PRR now is owned by 214,995 stockholders. It has paid its investors a cash return every year since 1847—a total of $1,297,893,025 (B). It has paid its employees in its century of service over $10,000,000,000 (B) in wages.

Claims Many "Firsts"

The PRR claims these "firsts": steel rail, the airbrake, block signals, the application of the telephone to railroading, the train phone now in use on moving trains, steel cars, through freight trains operating on regular schedules, coordination of truck and train service and the direct-drive steam turbine engine.

Its 161,436 employees last year enabled the PRR to transport more than 280,000,000 (M) tons of freight and more than 159,000,000 (M) passengers. From two trains a day in 1849 it now operates more than 1,349 passenger trains and 3,170 freight trains every 24 hours.

The Pennsylvania system includes only about six per cent of the nation's track, but collects more than 11 per cent of the nation's railroad revenues.

The President's Opinion

It owns ships, mines and timberlands, power plants and city lots, grain elevators and hotels, foundries and laboratories and a million other items.

It has played a major role through five wars and today it is well into reconversion.

In the words of its president, Martin W. Clement:

"If the public wants streamlined trains, we've got to give them streamlined trains. x x x The airlines will stimulate us to do a better job, which means we've got to give passengers better food, better drinks, better accommodations and comforts than they can get elsewhere."

Dried vegetables were used during the Civil War to prevent scurvy.

Season Opens Today For Southern Loop

Atlanta, April 12 (AP)—Facing an unpredictable season because of numerous players back from military service, the Southern association opens its parks today for the 46th campaign, but its first as a Class AA league.

Rosters of the various teams scarcely bore a resemblance to last year's personnel. Atlanta, the defending champion, has only two players of its 1945 regulars, and practically the same condition exists elsewhere around the league.

An estimated 43,000 fans are expected to attend the openers, surpassing last year's first-day crowds by 12,000.

COUNCIL NAMES 5 TO AUTHORITY BOARD; STUDY PROJECT PLANS

Ways and means of completing the Littlestown sewer project were discussed Thursday night at a joint meeting of the Littlestown borough council and Authority board. No definite decision was reached but another meeting will be held in the near future at which time the engineer, Francis S. Friel, of Albright and Friel, Inc., Philadelphia, will be present. After all facts and figures are assembled, possibilities of state or federal aid will be investigated.

At the beginning of its special session, the council adopted a resolution appointing five members to the Authority board for a period of five years each, all appointments retroactive to the date when the previous terms expired. William V. Sneeringer was appointed to fill a vacancy, and the four old members were re-appointed. Terms are staggered a year apart. Those appointed, and the date when their present term will expire, are as follows: W. H. Dem, July 9, 1946; William V. Sneeringer, July 9, 1947; James H. Herring, July 9, 1948; Samuel E. Renner, July 9, 1949; and Arthur E. Blair, July 9, 1950. The members of the board serve without pay.

Attorney Eugene V. Bulleit reviewed the history of the sewer project to date.

Need At Least $225,000

Work on the sewer construction was begun here in March, 1941, under the Works Progress Administration, with the federal government providing funds for the labor and some of the materials. The Littlestown Authority board was organized to float an $85,000 bond issue to take care of the borough's share of the undertaking. Work on the construction of a disposal plant and the laying of sewer lines was halted on April 29, 1943. The disposal plant, which was being constructed at the north end of town, is about 75 per cent completed, while about eight per cent of the lines have been laid. The construction of a pumping station is among the work remaining to be done. Sludge beds and filter beds have been constructed at the disposal plant but there are no buildings and no equipment there.

Government grants are no longer available for the work and engineers for the sewer system estimate that from $225,000 to $250,000 will be required to complete the work. The borough must find a means of raising this money to finish the job. At its last regular meeting, council adopted a resolution providing for an emergency payment of interest on the authority bonds, due in April and October, 1946. The first bond of $1,000 will be due in 1947.

While no definite decisions were reached as to how the money is to be raised to complete the sewer, various possibilities were discussed, including a frontage foot assessment, public subscription, operation of the water plant by the Authority board, and another bond issue. The objections to each were brought out. Attorney Bulleit stated that a further bond issue would cause sewer rental rates to be excessively high. A full investigation into the possibility of government aid will be made. One person said he thought it was a moral obligation of the federal government to help complete what it caused to be started by its offer of free labor.

The danger of an epidemic was also voiced with the streets in their present unclean condition. All present were in agreement that a sewer system was the only answer to this problem. Complaints from District of Columbia officials to this district were reported for polluting the Potomac river water-shed.

Board Reorganizes

After the general discussion, it was decided to have another joint meeting soon and have the engineer present. After that meeting, everything possible will be done to get the work on completion of the sewer started as soon as possible.

Present at the meeting were Burgess Charles R. Mehning, Councilmen Howard Trostle, Edward Leister, Albert H. Kindig, LeRoy M. (Please Turn to Page 2)

Legion Post Adds Six New Members

The membership of the John W. Ocker Post of the American Legion was brought to 177 with the addition of six new members Thursday evening: Earl R. Yingling, George A. Kress, Jr., Earl G. Sanders, Ray Earl Hawk, Robert L. Snyder and Warren H. Wisotzky.

The post birthday banquet has been postponed due to Lenten services in town and other activities.

Starting May 2, the post will hold a meeting every Thursday night. After that date, the canteen will not be open on Friday nights but instead will be open Thursday nights and Sundays.

Wilbur E. Mackley was elected as a trustee.

Koons Florist Shop Prepares For Easter Observance Of Great Church Festival; Littlestown Business Founded In 1931

With Easter only a few days away, The Koons Florist Shop, 46 Prince street, Littlestown, is an extremely busy place, getting its blooms ready for this great church festival. Easter, according to J. Harvey Pettyjohn, proprietor of the florist business, is one of the four big seasons of the year in the florist trade. Others are Memorial Day, Mother's Day and Christmas.

Under the 12,000 square feet of glass in the five greenhouses on Prince street are hundreds of spring flowers—snapdragons, stock, cyclamen, primrose, begonias, cineraria, tulips, pansies, hyacinths, lilies, carnations, daffodils, sweet peas, petunias, geraniums and many others.

15,000 Tomato Plants

Ready for transplanting out of doors are 15,000 tomato plants. On the more prosaic side of the business are these and the hundred of cabbage, pepper, cauliflower and other vegetable plants raised at the greenhouses.

"It's a big, year-round job," admits Mr. Pettyjohn. And it's a job calling for long hours and constant care of the plants from seeds or bulbs to maturity and an unceasing warfare against pests and blights.

Incidentally, the flowers and plants are raised in good old Adams county soil, not imported loam. The earth is carefully prepared, however, and fertilizer or plant food added. Constant temperatures are maintained by thermostatic controls in the greenhouses.

One method of killing "bugs" is described by Mr. Pettyjohn as a nicotine "smoke." Actually, he says, the smoke becomes so thick during its use in the greenhouses that it is impenetrable. The greenhouses are closed tight when it is used to "fumigate" the bugs out of existence.

Founded In 1931

The "smoke" and various sprays are used much oftener in the greenhouses than for out-of-door plants because, in the warm humid atmosphere the plant pests develop more rapidly, Mr. Pettyjohn said.

During the colder months, it is necessary to keep a good fire going constantly in the boilers, which often means staying up at night. Temperatures vary little, even in the coldest weather, however, under the glass roofs, as the thermostats maintain their work of control. Only with a high wind does the mercury sometimes drop, in spite of the heating plant's efforts.

Mr. Pettyjohn succeeded to the proprietorship of the business when

J. Harvey Pettyjohn (left) present proprietor of Koons Florist Shop and W. E. Koons, founder of the business are shown in one of the greenhouses.

Daily Times And Littlestown Supplement Are Featured In Subscription Drive By Juniors

"The borough of Littlestown and the surrounding area is receiving the finest news coverage every day in The Gettysburg Times I have ever seen," said a prominent Littlestown merchant this week.

"Everything of interest that occurs or takes place in Littlestown and vicinity can be found in the news columns of The Times, each week day. This means that Littlestown, second largest borough in Adams county has been given its rightful place in the news of the day. The things that we do and the things that take place here are recognized as news and given their place of prominence every afternoon in The Gettysburg Times.

"With an official representative of The Times in Littlestown we feel that we have a voice in the publishing field, and through this medium we are becoming better acquainted and our fellowship is closer cemented with the rest of Adams county."

The Gettysburg Times features a Littlestown column in each edition six days a week. On Friday a special Littlestown Supplement is published, containing not only spot news but feature articles of business, industry and individuals of Littlestown and vicinity. Photographs accompany most of the features.

Joining in a widespread movement to expand the Littlestown news program and to swell their class fund members of the Junior class of the Littlestown high school are conducting a subscription campaign for The Gettysburg Times.

Class members are selling subscriptions to the daily edition of The Gettysburg Times at the regular subscription rate of fifty cents per month. This includes the daily Times and the added Friday Littlestown Supplement. A percentage of the sales go to the Junior Class and cash prizes are being awarded to the three juniors who sell the most subscriptions.

The contest closes April 27.

W. E. Koons, who built the greenhouses in 1931, retired September 10, 1945. Mr. Koons had been a farmer and later was employed in a florist business in Westminster before opening his own business in Littlestown. Mr. Pettyjohn worked in the Cannon Shoe company's (Please turn to Page 3)

Forty-three years ago a two-story brick factory building was erected in Littlestown. A 16-year-old Littlestown youth went to work in it as a spinner boy. Today Thomas Staley is manager of the plant, now known as the Littlestown Throwing company.

Sydney Suter and Henry Musser of York, owners of the Monarch Silk mill in that city, erected the 50 by 210 feet building and installed machinery for both throwing and weaving of silk. The plant started operations in January, 1904.

Since that time, the plant itself has changed hands several times, and taken new names with almost every change in ownership and management, but it has remained in continuous operation, except for one period of approximately six months, it has turned out silk all these years, and Manager Staley has remained, in one position or another, from spinner boy to manager.

In 1906 W. R. Thomas, Catasauqua, and Charles Lotte, Littlestown, took over the mill. They operated it as the Littlestown Silk Mill. In 1930 it was consolidated with the Wahnetah Silk company at Catasauqua. A half dozen or so years later the Wahnetah mills went out of business. It was idle for a few months. Then the Adams Processing company rented the building. This firm retained it until March 29, 1943, when Newell Coxon, Harrisburg, bought the mill. It had been intended to use it for the manufacture of wood heels for shoes, but when Mr. Coxon saw the machinery he left it as a silk mill.

Could Use More Help At the present time the Littlestown Throwing company furnishes employment for about 60 persons, most of them women. It could use more help if it could get it, Mr. Staley says. The machinery with which the plant is equipped cannot be utilized to capacity because of this shortage of help.

"We have about 60 employees, and we could use 100," Mr. Staley said. "We've got the business but we can't get the help."

The mill operates as what is known as a commission mill. It receives the silk, spins or twists it to thread, and ships it to dyers and weavers. It comes into the plant as raw silk, and goes out ready to be dyed and made into everything from dresses, scarfs, neckties and handkerchiefs to the ribbon decorations on the chests of G.I's.

During the war years almost all of the silk from the Littlestown Throwing company was used by the army or navy. It may have gone into parachutes, but it was seldom that those working in the plant ever knew. During the war years most of the silk processed was rayon or cellophane. The Littlestown mill now, for the first time since before the Pearl Harbor sneak attack, is receiving Japanese silk again, but only in small quantities.

Miles of Thread Made Silk also comes to the Littlestown plant from China, Brazil and Italy. That from China is packed in bales wrapped in straw matting. The saying that good things come in small packages could be paraphrased in this case to say that valuable shipments come in small packages. A recent shipment of raw silk delivered by express to the plant consisted of only a few small packages, but was valued at $15,000. The insurance cost more than the express charges.

Fire and burglar insurance on the plant, and more particularly its contents, is an expensive item too. Raw silk costs, at the present time, $15 a pound, Mr. Staley said. It doesn't take much silk to make a pound.

The spinning reels and spools in the plant create a constant hum of activity 24 hours a day. The plant runs around the clock because it is not possible in all operations to break the thread when the whistle blows. The raw silk is soaked, dried, and its fine threads spun and twisted, so many threads for this kind, a different number for that, and 11 turns left and four turns right, or in some other ratio, depending upon specifications.

One skein of spun thread, ready for shipment to the dyer or weaver, may contain 10,000 or more yards of silk, real silk running as high as 20,000 yards to a skein.

Couple Observes 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Myers observed their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday. They were entertained at dinner at the Battlefield hotel, Gettysburg, by their daughter, Mrs. Dennis Hartlaub, Littlestown, and their son, Vernon Myers, Hanover. Mr. and Mrs. Myers have lived in this district all their lives and were married in St. John's Lutheran parsonage April 7, 1896, by the Rev. W. C. Wire.

Mr. Myers was born in Carroll County in 1875, a son of the late Daniel and Lydia Myers, and Mrs. Myers was born in Mount Joy township in 1876, a daughter of the late Emanuel and Maria Worley. Mr. Myers has delivered bread in Littlestown for 22 years, starting under Clair Hildebrand, and continuing for the past 20 years under Charles M. Weikert, who bought out Hildebrand. Mrs. Myers is employed by the George Collins Cigar Manufacturing company.

By P. EMORY WEAVER

Christ Reformed church, located in Union township, Adams county, about 1½ miles east of Littlestown, is the mother of all Reformed churches on this side of York. Christ church was organized in 1747.

The country was sparsely settled in this section where Christ Reformed church now stands. Not many white people had taken possession on the west side of the Susquehanna river. There were trees and underbrush wherever you looked. These were infested by treacherous and hostile Indians and ferocious wild beasts. So people were slow to go in and possess the rich lands of the Conewago valley.

The spiritual condition of the inhabitants was at a low ebb. Great destitution prevailed among the small number of settlers. There were no ministers of the Gospel and no houses of worship among them, no pastors to bring the message of salvation, to administer the Sacraments of Holy Baptism and the Lord's Supper, to comfort the sick and dying, and to officiate when they laid their departed loved ones to rest. Such a community was truly to be pitied.

Help From Holland

This spiritual destitution reached the brethren in Holland, and they resolved to do their utmost to relieve them.

When the Classis of Amsterdam was in session they seriously discussed the matter, and decided to send one of their young ministers across the ocean to break the bread of life, and to gather and organize them into congregations. The lot fell upon Rev. Michael Schlatter, D.V.M., a servant full of zeal and life, like the Apostle Paul, who had but one desire for the lost souls, and that was that they might be saved. He undertook the slow and dangerous voyage in the spring of 1746 and arrived at Philadelphia in the fall of the same year.

He at once took charge of the congregations of Philadelphia and Germantown. In his journal he states that in the spring of 1747 he took a long journey on horseback through Southern Pennsylvania into Maryland. On his way he stopped in the Conewago valley, where there was a schoolhouse where Christ Reformed church now stands. He at once arranged to observe the Holy Communion. People came from far and near, so that the schoolhouse was too small to accommodate the spiritually hungry and thirsty. So he stated in his journal, that they observed the Holy Eucharist under the open heavens. There were 80 communicants.

On the same day, the 4th of May, 1747, he administered holy baptism to 21 infants. After these solemn services he announced the object of his coming among them, which was to organize them regularly into a congregation. They received the God-sent news with gladness and tears. They at once elected elders and deacons whom he ordained and installed by laying on of hands and earnest fervent prayers. Forty-five families became the charter members of the new organization.

He then continued his journey into Maryland. The congregation had no regular pastor for several years. They were occasionally visited by ministers. They conducted divine services among themselves, and kept the congregation alive and active. Rev. M. Schlatter revisited them in May, 1748, and brought them the message of salvation. On this visit he went into Virginia to gather the scattered sheep in that section of the country.

The Land Purchased

The land on which the house of worship stands was purchased from the Penn heirs. The deed is signed by John Penn and Thomas Penn, Esq. The fathers acted wisely and purchased 37 acres of land, and paid for the valuable small farm $37. It is farmed by the sextons.

The first house of worship was erected between the years of 1753 and 1755. It was built of rough unhewn logs, with no plaster between them or anywhere else. The seats were slab stools with no backs to them. There were no stoves to heat the building in the coldest kind of weather, and yet history tells us that the regularly divine services were largely attended in the coldest as well as in the hottest weather. The humble worshippers came from far and near, not in automobiles and carriages, but on horseback, big wagons, and home-made block sleds. The discourses were not sermonettes to tickle the ears of the listeners, but an hour long, and even longer at times. The late Rev. Dr. F. S. Lindaman wrote in his historical sketch:

"I wonder how many churchgoers we would have in our day with such accommodations. Even the finest and most costly church buildings, and most attractive and comfortable furniture, fail to draw many professors of religion to the house of worship today, to serve their Lord and Master, Whom they profess to love and honor."

PHONES HOME FROM ITALY

Pfc. Emory W. Wintrobe, who is in Gorizia, Italy, talked Thursday morning with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Wintrobe, Littlestown. They had received a message last Monday morning informing them that a telephone message from their son would be put through to the Claude W. Harner grocery store, a short distance from their home, at 10 a. m. Thursday morning. At 10 minutes after 10 the call came through but contact was delayed until 10:40 o'clock because of atmospheric conditions. The lad first talked with his mother and then with his father.

His mother had recently been in the Hanover General hospital, where she had been operated upon. The family did not notify their sons of her illness until after she had returned home, not wishing to worry them. When Emory received the letter containing word of his mother's operation, he arranged for the telephone conversation. He is 21, and has been in the army thirty-one months. Twenty-five months have been spent in Italy. He has not had a furlough since leaving his home for induction.

He is with the 338th Infantry Regiment of the 85th (Custer) Division. He was awarded the Combat Infantry badge for participation in battle against the enemy on the Fifth Army front in Italy. He has re-enlisted for three more years. He told his parents that he expects to get a furlough home within the next few months.

Mr. and Mrs. Wintrobe have another son in the service. He is Pfc. Lloyd C. Wintrobe, who is with the Coast Artillery in Sendico, Japan. He has spent 41 months in the service, twenty-eight of which have been spent in the Pacific theater of operations. In December of 1945, he re-enlisted for 18 months. Six months of this enlistment will be spent on foreign soil after which he will return to the United States for a 90-day furlough and re-assignment for the remaining year of his enlistment. Lloyd is 25 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Wintrobe also have a son-in-law in the service. He is T/Sgt. Vernon Study, husband of the former Miss Bernice Wintrobe. He entered the service a year ago and has been overseas six months. He is now stationed on Okinawa.

Christ Reformed Church

1798. This building had galleries on three sides, and a high funnel-shaped pulpit. The elders, in 1798, when the present substantial brick church was built, were Andrew Shriver and Jacob Parr. They, together with Conrad Dutler, Ludwig Mouse, and Jacob Will, constituted the building committee. John Dysert was secretary. He was also the teacher of the school connected with the church. The church was incorporated in 1828, the charter bearing the signature of Gov. J. A. Schultze, and is dated March 5, 1828. The first trustees elected under the charter were John Wintrobe, Michael Crouse, George Will, John Young, Samuel Shriver, John Snyder, George Dutler, Christian Heller, and John Study. Jacob Keller was appointed treasurer.

Enlarged and Beautified

The brick church building was enlarged and beautified in the year 1877, and is now a two-story building. This rebuilding program cost about $8,000. The basement was and is now used by the Sunday School, and the upper room for the regular divine services as well as Sunday School. The Sunday School room was again remodeled and enlarged in 1888 to accommodate the increasing number of scholars. There is an attractive Primary department and a large room for the main school.

In 1896 the upper room was greatly improved and beautified. A pipe organ was installed, the walls frescoed, the floor raised. New comfortable pews took the place of the old ones, new pulpit furniture displaced the old, and a magnificent memorial window was placed in the front part of the room sacred to the memory of Rev. Michael Schlatter, D.V.M., and the pastors who have served the congregation since its organization.

Rev. Jacob Lischey was pastor from 1749 to 1751; Rev. Theodore Frankenfeld, 1753-1756; and Rev. John C. Steiner, 1756-1759. Pastors during the period 1759-1775 were until recently simply listed as "supplied," but in December, 1942, Prof. William J. Hinkle, Ph.D., D.D., of Auburn Theological Seminary, Auburn, N. Y., who is an expert on the signatures of 18th century Reformed ministers, made a translation of the original baptismal and communicant records of Christ Church, and as a result of his labors has been able to fill in some of these supplies, as follows:

Rev. John Waldschmidt, 1763.
Rev. Jacob Lischey, 1764-1769.
Rev. J. Jacob Zufall, 1771-1772.
Rev. John Christopher, 1773-1774.
The pastors of Christ Church since 1775 are listed as follows:
Rev. Charles L. Boehm, 1775-1779.
Rev. John C. Gobrecht, 1779-1807.
Rev. Charles Helfenstien, 1809-1813.
Rev. Jacob Weistling, 1813-1824.
Rev. Frederick W. Hindeman, 1826-1827.

Rev. Samuel Gutelius, 1828-1837.
Rev. Jacob Sechler, 1837-1856.
Rev. John M. Clemens, 1857-1869.
Rev. Casper Scheel, 1870-1872.
Rev. John A. Ault, 1873-1880.
Rev. John Kretzing, 1881-1886.
Rev. F. S. Lindaman, D.D., 1886-1926.

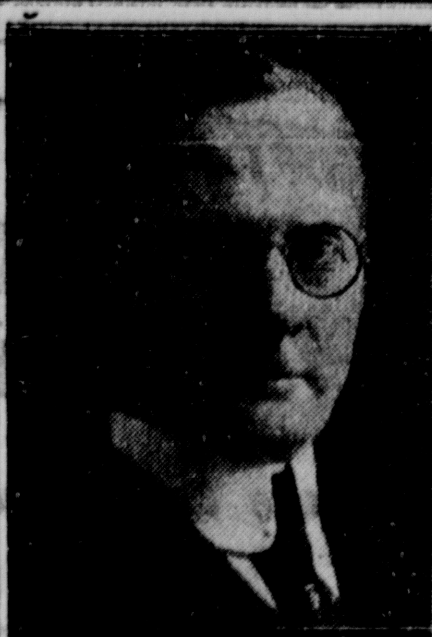

Rev. W. A. Kline, Litt.D., Dean of Ursinus, Assistant Pastor, 1896-1927.
Rev. H. H. Hartman, D.D., 1926-1940.
Rev. John C. Brumbach, since Oct. 1, 1940.

Had Three Parsonages

Christ church has had three different parsonages in Littlestown. The first was on North Queen street, the second on East King street beside the former Krebs academy, and the present parsonage at 323 East King street. The present parsonage was erected during the first year of Dr. Hartman's pastorate.

In 1929, a hardwood floor was laid in the Sunday School room. The art windows were all re-leaded in the auditorium; and an organ blower was installed. The interior of the auditorium was decorated and the wood-work varnished. A year later the exterior of the church was painted. In 1941, the Sunday School was re-decorated.

Plans are in progress at this time for the celebration of the 200th anniversary on May 4, 1947. The auditorium will be re-decorated and other repairs will be made in preparation for this great event. At that time, it is hoped that a more complete history of the congregation, which the present pastor is compiling, will be ready for publication. The 175th anniversary of Christ church was celebrated in 1922 during the pastorate of the late Rev. Dr. F. S. Lindaman. 1922 was also the 50th Anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Lindaman into the Ministry. The 175th Anniversary Program was conducted from June 4 to June 11, 1922.

Rev. Dr. H. H. Hartman, who preceded Rev. Brumbach as pastor of Christ Reformed church. He now lives at Royersford.

Present Membership 504

The present membership of the church is 504, and the Sunday School enrollment is 317. The value of the property, including church, parsonage, cemetery, farm and buildings, is over $25,000.

Fifty-eight members of the congregation have served in the armed forces, four of whom made the supreme sacrifice. On April 11, 1943, a special service was held at which time a service flag was presented to the congregation by Mr. and Mrs. Claude A. Snyder and daughter in memory of their son and brother, F. 2/c Glenn Allen Snyder, United States Navy, who was reported missing in action on September 13, 1942, and was first casualty of the World War II from Littlestown. At the same time an Honor Roll, containing the names of the members of the congregation in the armed forces, was presented by the Sunday School.

In addition to Glenn A. Snyder, who was reported missing in action in the Battle of Savo Island, September 13, 1942, and presumed dead on August 10, 1943, the following from Christ Church gave their lives: Cpl. Richard Miller Palmer, killed in action in France on D-Day, June 6, 1944; Pfc. Archie H. Feesser, killed in action in France on D-Day, 12, 1944; and Sgt. Albert D. Crabbs, Jr., killed in action over Germany, April 10, 1945.

Koons Florist

plant in McSherrystown and helped out on a part time basis in the florist business before he took over the full time operation. Mr. Pettyjohn's wife "grew up" in the business founded by her father.

Raises Most Flowers

The Koons shop is the only one in Littlestown and supplies most of the flowers and plants used in that borough and in Taneytown and other communities. Although Mr. Koons retired from the florist business last year, he still helps out in the greenhouses.

The shop raises almost all of its own flowers, except roses, gardenias and orchids, which, with the greens used in bouquets and sprays, it buys from wholesalers. Some flowers, Mr. Pettyjohn said, grow the year round, while there are definite seasons for others, even under greenhouse cultivation. Snapdragons, for instance, are "in season" from December to June, while other blooms, such as stock, cyclamen, primrose, begonia, cineraria and others bloom from January to June. Most flowers from bulbs are seasonal, blooming in the Spring. Gladioli, however, bloom the year round. Carnations are "in season" from September to January, and calla lilies from October to June. Easter lilies, in a profusion of blooms right now, come in the spring, as do the tulips and hyacinths. Mr. Pettyjohn has 2,500 geraniums in bloom or approaching the flower stage. Many of these are used at Memorial day, he said.

Mr. Pettyjohn also has a large number of potted ferns and palms for decorative purposes, for weddings and other functions. He supplies a large number of bridal bouquets and corsages and makes up floral pieces for funerals. Cactus and foliage plants are also raised in the greenhouses.

The Story Of Andrew Schreiber (Shriver) Early Town Settler

Ann squatted on the bank of the stream. The family's clothes lay partially on the bank and partially in the tiny rivulet. With a wooden paddle she beat the clothes. The dirt slid away in long dark stains in the water.

The day was perfect for washing. The warm sun sat above the trees and smiled benignly at the world beneath. Bees and flies hummed drowsy songs through the tall weeds. A lazy southern wind occasionally shifted the leaves of the trees and made waves of the high weeds and then, exhausted by its slight endeavors, lay back to rest before playfully caressing the earth once more. The stream sang a brisk little song over the stones as if pretending it was the only thing in all creation that had business to transact.

Ann smiled at herself, noting that the stream, more than she herself was engaged in washing the clothes. The thump of her paddle against the clothes came more and more infrequently. Slightly angered at her lassitude she beat out a sudden spurt of mud that deepened the dirt stain in the water and splashed her in the process. The water felt cool and soft on her arms and face.

Wagon Is Completed
She looked up to see Andrew standing near her, smiling. She had not noticed that the hammering sound that had come most of the morning from the new shed near the cabin had ceased.

"I must have been day dreaming," she said.

"What?" Andrew sometimes could not follow the conversation or moods of his wife.

"Neven mind," she smiled mysteriously.

But Andy was full of himself and the puzzling conversation did not bother him long. Grasping Ann by the hand he led her gaily toward the house despite her protests about the clothes.

"Look," he said proudly, when they reached the shed.

There it stood, the brand new wagon. Andrew had cut four wheels from a large log, rounded them and drilled holes for the axles. From time to time during the winter, seated before the fireplace during long evenings, he had been busy with knife and axe rounding out the wheels. Now he had constructed the frame and had put on the axles and had placed the wheels. The soap about the axles where the wheels fitted made a dark patch against the lighter wood. The warmth had caused the soap to melt and it made tiny paths down the side of the wheels.

Ann's eyes danced with pride. In a quick birdlike motion she turned and planted a light kiss on Andrew's cheek. "It is wonderful," she said, and Andrew basked in her appreciation of his handiwork.

The First Ride
Usually the days were full of hard work, but there were on occasion the delights of life—like the completion of the wagon. Andrew and Ann, hardworking though they were,

could not resist the temptation to try it. The ox was yoked and they rode about the farm and then over to Ludwig Schreiber's and David Young's to show off the new equipment. There was work to be done in the fields and about the farm, but they let it go while they made a holiday of it.

Andrew, though, was grumpy after their return. It seemed somewhat sinful to enjoy life so much.

Ann, who had gathered the clothes in a hurry before they started the ride, and had hung them to dry, worried not at all because the clothes would have been cleaner if they had been beaten longer. They would be beaten again, she thought, and then the rest of the dirt would be washed out.

There were many times of joy in the household: in the fall when strings of peppers, the pumpkins, the apples, the bunches of sage were hung in the loft and the entire house had that pleasant odor of good food and a full harvest; in the spring when the first flowers bloomed, and in the winter, when they met with friends. There was much work, Ann thought, and there was much pleasure in the simple things God gives one.

There was one household rite that Ann loved above all else. Shortly after young Andrew was born David Jung had brought them a Bible. Now each evening Andrew would sit close to the fire, his finger pointing out the beautiful lines of German in the Bible and he read to them after they had cleared away the supper and were ready to retire.

Overseer Of Poor
With his long beard and his harsh voice Andrew seemed like some patriarch of ancient times reading the word of God, she felt, as she watched him silhouetted against the fire and heard the words of the gospel. Sometimes she thought of her father, who too had read the Bible in the evenings in Philadelphia.

Thus they spent their lives. One evening a stranger had ridden into the farmyard. "It is the house of Andrew Schreiber?" Andy had come up from the lower field when he saw the stranger approaching.

"As you know, York county has been formed from Lancaster county." His tone sounded more like a question than a statement of fact. "Your land is in Heidelberg township."

"You have been appointed overseer of the poor for the township. Peter Schultz is the other overseer. Here are your papers." The man smiled. Andrew was overjoyed at the honor paid him. But then he became grave. It was a great responsibility.

Andrew was in York in connection with his post as overseer when the Indian came to the door. The Indians were frequent visitors, ever since the day when the Schreibers had first arrived at their new home. In spring and fall they traveled north and south and always they stopped with the Schreibers. Then there would be talk and the smoking of the peace pipe.

One Delaware, who was more friendly and outspoken than the others, made it a point to stop frequently on his trips. This time he seemed agitated. He asked for Andrew and instead of coming into the cabin stood in the doorway and looked about him as he spoke. His voice was low and he seemed wary of being overheard.

Warned of Trouble

"Tell Andrew," he said, "that times of great trouble are upon us. There are white men of the French nation who are feeding firewater to our peoples. There are men of your nation who also are seeking the aid of the Indian in taking to the warpath. Always there are those who do not love peace. Let Andrew look to his safety." Then the Indian, like a shadow disappeared. For a long time Ann wondered if she had heard aright, or if the Indian had been there at all.

The year was 1753 and she had believed there was peace in the land. In a year there would be the building of a Fort near what was to be Arendtsville. There would be fear on the land and men scalped before the eyes of their families. There would be death and destruction. But of that Ann did not know, for that was of the future.

Now she stood in the center of her house with her hand at her throat hoping for Andrew to come home soon. There seemed to be a cloud over the sun.
